Board to Advertise for New School Buses for Levittown; Cannot Increase Teachers' Salaries Due to Increases in Other Expenses of The District.

The Bristol Township School Board still has not received formal notice from the Township Authority of the results of the bidding for the construction of the John Fitch and George Taylor schools.

According to William Vetter, school board president, the Authority is still compiling figures necessary to determine the low bidders for construction of the schools. Reason for the delay was given that there are many alternate and additive items to be considered in finally deciding who is the low bidder.

Following the school board meeting last night at Delhaas School, Vetter also explained that the school board will place its first advertisement today for bids for two new school buses in which they will transport the children of Levittown to classrooms at the Wistar Institute.

As a result of the time lag between advertising for bids for supplying school buses and actual possession of the buses it is expected that the opening date of school at Wistar Institute will be delayed.

Teachers will also be hired to teach the Levittown children at the Institute.

The school Board opened their special meeting last night by resolving the problem of teachers salary increase requested by Township Teachers.

Increases in township school janitors' vacations were granted, a decision to hire cleaning women for three of the township's schools was made, and a test of the new fluorescent lights will be made at the Croydon School and the new Edgely School. Additional wages and expenses were granted to the school employees who had driven the township school buses to Ohio for body installation, and two new teachers were hired for the Fall term.

With respect to the $200 yearly salary increase requested by the school teachers the board as a whole was unanimous in its regret that "the thing was brought up after we adopted our budget," in the words of William Clifton.

Walter Miller, regional superintendent, said, "I've fought for the raise all along, but if the board's decision is such that there can't be an increase at this time," then said Miller, he felt that the teachers would abide by the Board's decision.

After a motion "that the board cannot afford to give the teachers the requested increase" was approved, it was also approved that a member of the board would personally contact the teachers explaining in full the reasons for the board's decisions.

Reasons advanced last night for not granting the teachers salary increase were: use of available funds was necessary for the purchase of additional school buses, for the purchase of additional land, for the construction of a garage to house the school buses; an increase in teachers salaries — at a total estimated cost of approximately $18,000 would mean an additional tax millage increase of approximately two mills to the school tax because provision would have to be made to pay the additional cost of the increase.

Janitors and bus drivers however, were given the following additional vacations and sick leave according to the following schedule which was adopted by the board:

DOLINGTON, Aug. 20 — The fifth annual Bucks County Guernsey Show got under way on the grounds adjacent to Makefield meeting house yesterday morning at 10 o'clock.

One hundred entries—prize stock of the 23 Bucks County breeders competing in the show, representing the finest Guernsey cattle in this area and in the east, were judged by Official Judge George M. In a clearing in the cornfields just off route 522 under a 100-foot tent serving as a gigantic umbrella affording protection from the August sun, in an oval area laid one foot deep with clean wood shavings, famous Brown and white Guernseys were led through their paces before the judges by the guiding hands of their exhibitors.

And bordering the roped-off oval, under the fringes of the tented area, on new, wooden folding chairs sat over 200 people, enjoying the show and the perfect weather of the afternoon.

Six classes of competition were held in the morning. Then the show recessed and some spectators and officials of the show gathered in groups to picnic under the ancient spreading trees of Makefield meeting grounds. BLAMES NEWS STORY

DOYLESTOWN, Aug. 20 — A prominent Quakertown, Pa., publisher and radio station owner has been named defendant in a suit for $50,000 damages in an action in trespass in the Court of Common Pleas of Bucks County.

The plaintiff is Carl F. Schnabel, West Rockhill Township real estate agent, and a former resident of Philadelphia, who seeks damages from the defendant, Charles M. Meredith, publisher of the Quakertown Free Press, a well-known Bucks county weekly newspaper.

In the statement of claim filed in the Prothonotary's office here by Attorneys Louis Greenblatt, of Phila., and Edwin S. Conno, of Doylestown, for the plaintiff, it is alleged that the defendant's newspaper published a libelous story about him on January 24, 1952, regarding an alleged crime of gambling involving the use of slot machines on the Schnabel property when it was visited by State Police last year.

Schnabel was acquitted in the Bucks county criminal court, last September, and the article mentioning him did not appear until Jan. 24, this year.

It is alleged that the printed story was "damaging to the plaintiff; that it injured his good name, credit and reputation and put him into public scandal and disgrace."

BOSTONIANS ON TOUR

Music lovers in cities throughout the country will finally have a chance to see and hear the orchestra that drew frantic bravos in its first European tour last spring. The Boston Symphony is planning for next spring a tour of the United States that will take it—and its vast musical experience—west to the coast, through the Rocky Mountain area and south as far as New Orleans.

This will be the first American tour of the orchestra, barring a series of 12 concerts conducted by Karl Muck at the San Francisco Exposition in 1915. The enterprise will be undertaken in addition to the orchestra's regular appearance at Symphony Hall, Boston, and its customary visits to other eastern cities. In all, the season's performances will number 300, an amazing total.

CENTURY OF HOMELESS

This is not the century of the common man, but the century of the homeless, according to the Rev. Elfan Rees, World Council of Churches representative on refugee problems. He was not overstating the case, despite all the constructive and destructive steps which have reduced the number of refugees.

The International Refugee Organization has helped 1,000,000 European refugees to new homes and new lives. But there are still 10,000,000 displaced persons in Western Europe, many of them driven out by Russian tyranny. There are 13,000,000 displaced Moslems and Hindus in India and Pakistan. There are 900,000 Arab refugees from Israel.

Behind the iron curtain, whole communities are forced into mass migration and millions go to slave labor camps.

It is easy to assume that the defeat of the Soviet Union in war—or perhaps her reformation from within—would solve all the world's problems. Actually, the most it might possibly do is to create more stable conditions under which a solution could be more hopefully attempted. Such an amelioration of difficulties would leave the problem of the homeless still to be solved.

It seems a long time ago that there was a campaign on to "get the country out of the mud." Which raises the question, where do politicians get the mud they're slinging?

When Brothers And Sisters Are Constantly Quarrelsome

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, Ph.D.

WHEN two or more children grow up together, considerable contention among them is to be expected. But the amount of this depends very much on how decisive the parent is in relation to the children.

The mother of four girls, three, five, nine and 13, can't understand why they quarrel so much, argue so much with her and so rarely help her willingly. She writes:

"Today, when the two younger ones were quarreling over some magazines, I sent them to separate rooms, but they yelled back and forth. I finally used a stick. Not only do these two little ones almost constantly quarrel, but when they're all together it's terrible. I'm dreading the summer when they'll be here day in and day out. If I could spend this summer without constant interruption to settle an argument, I'd feel I had accomplished a great deal."

Shirk Their Tasks

"The older girls want to argue with me when they are given jobs—trying to get out of them or not finishing them neatly when they know how. Never a willingness to help me. They don't start a task, though they know that when it is finished they will be allowed to play with a friend who has just called. By putting off the task they usually end up by not being able to go out, and by having the task to do anyway. Even when I try to reason in answering the simplest question, they think I'm lecturing. Any one of the girls by herself is a pleasure to be with, but any two—no."

Miss Jean Kuntz, Slatington, spent the past week with Mr. and

Here in part was my reply: Expect a good many quarrels. As long as your children don't endanger each other physically or the property and don't disturb the neighbors, why bother much? To be sure, there do come times when you can endure no more commotion, when you should separate them for a definite period without trying to place the blame. If they continue a word battle and you are sure they shouldn't, and that you are going to use the "stick" eventually, don't wait till you are very angry. Act at once.

Quiet Discussion

Define clearly each child's special rights, possessions and jobs when all of you are sitting quietly together, when each child should feel free to express her own ideas, though you often may have to make some of the decisions yourself. Do it without explaining too much, even at the risk of seeming to be a dictator.

Be too proud and poised to argue with them. Be master of your emotions as well as of the situation. Be especially serene before a visiting playmate. Instead of warning and scolding a child for putting off a specific job, state when it shall be done and how, and set a penalty for procrastinating. (My bulletins, "Quarreling and Fighting," and "How Teach Child To Help at Home," may be had in a stamped envelope sent me in care of this paper.)

Help each child cultivate some playmates of her age outside the family. Try to find more ways to have good times with these children, and be generous with deserving praise.

Mrs. Garrett Goodnoe, Miss Kuntz is a former teacher in Newtown schools.

Miss Janet Brabson, of Lancaster, is a house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Moore.

TOO MUCH SUN CAN BE DANGEROUS

(By INS)

PITTSBURGH, — (INS) — This is the season when reason goes breezy and people yield to the sun.

Because they do, physicians are worried.

A summer tan doesn't necessarily indicate good health or build resistance against colds, as some misguided sun-worshippers maintain. Often, over-exposure is serious.

The psychology involved is tough to refuse. People who are tanned look healthy and generally feel healthy. Nonetheless, the only benefit from sunlight is vitamin D, which the body can absorb without acquiring a tan.

To discard moderation means risking over-exposure which causes sunstroke, sun poisoning, nerve damage and, in rare instances, skin cancer. A fatal kidney ailment also is very possible.

Keratin, a flaky, colorless substance in the top layer of the skin, is the body's protection against sunburn. When heat irritates the skin, more Keratin is produced. It thickens and hardens, much like a callous, to provide greater protection against the sun.

The sunbather who stays under the sun too long risks not permitting the coating of Keratin to harden sufficiently and he's the guy who gets a sunburn.

The burn can be just as serious as any caused by flames. Expansion of the blood vessels, because of the heat, thins the walls and permits fluid to seep through, causing blisters and fever and occasionally a nasty kidney disorder.

Even trees and beach umbrellas aren't sure-fire protection because the rays which burn can be reflected, especially by water and sand.

For those who prefer to risk over-exposure in order to possess the golden tan, physicians suggest applying a lotion that will filter some of the rays.

A thick, gooey ointment is the best. It will mix with water and stick to the skin of the bather. The other, thinner type, washes right off.

FENCES

CORVALLIS, Ore. — (INS) — Did you ever wonder, as you drove along the highway, how many fences there are? A partial answer is supplied in Oregon, where the U. S. forest service estimates that farmers in the state use 4,500,000 new wooden fence posts each year. The figure does not include small timbers used for corals, bridges and like uses.

People who prefer carports—and there are more and more of them every day—say they make it easier to back the car in and out. Another advantage is that they can double as an all-weather play area for youngsters. But probably the biggest factor in their favor is that they're less expensive to build than garages.

The carport featured in House Plan E-14 adds a great deal to the exterior design of the house. It gives the dwelling a longer line that's graceful and streamlined.

This house is for a small family. It has a good-sized living room, which is made most attractive because of the 12-paned window looking out on the front grounds. The room is planned for pleasant living. It has a fireplace, a charming feature in wintry weather.

There's also an entrance to the patio, which should prove a popular spot in spring and summer. An alcove off the living room is designed for dining. It's adjacent to the compact kitchen with its corridor arrangement of appliances. Next to the kitchen are the utility and storage rooms.

Two bedrooms at the rear of the house can be reached through the living room. Both have roomy wardrobes and windows arranged to provide cross ventilation. The bath is in this section of the house too.

The house comprises 13,600 cubic feet.

House E-10 has a garage connected to the main building by a breezeway. The breezeway and garage give the front of the home an attractive L shape that would prove especially good on certain plots.

This is the house for people who prefer a garage, which, of course, has certain advantages. It provides indoor protection for cars when the weather's bad. Usually it offers space for storing gardening equipment and often it can be turned into a workroom where Dad can be a handyman to his heart's content.

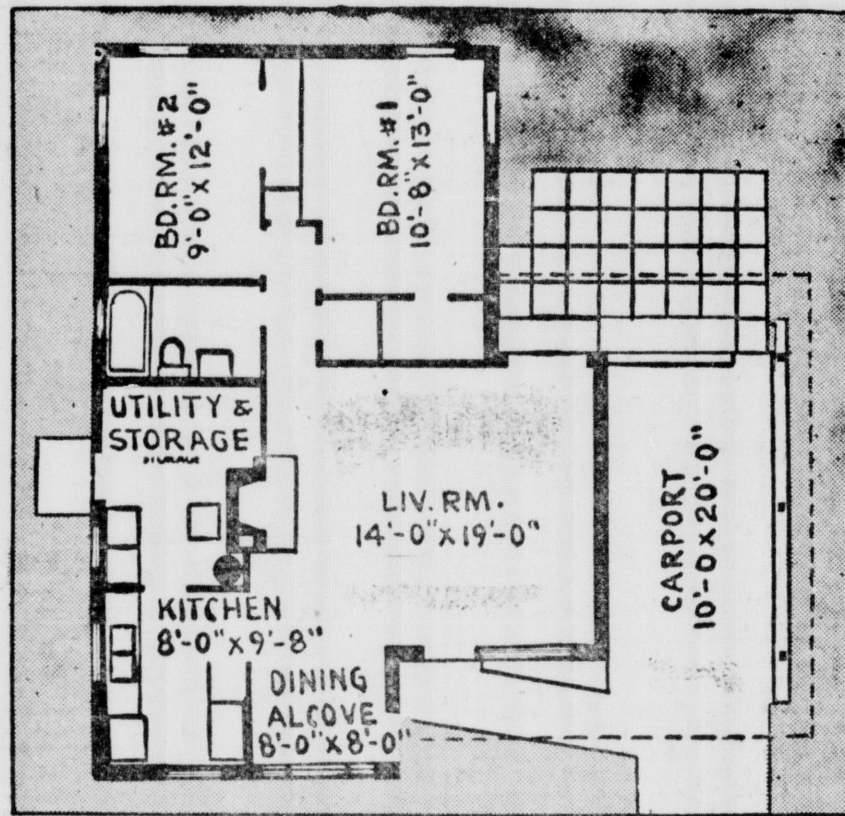

The living room of Home E-10 is in the front of the house. The fireplace is along the front wall. Along the opposite wall are built-in storage shelves. The room is light and airy with one group of windows that look out on the patio, an area that is walled in for privacy.

The dining room and kitchen are in the center of the dwelling, arranged to provide convenient meal preparation and serving.

Two bedrooms at the back of the home are good-sized. The wall space here is planned so that a variety of furniture arrangements are possible.

The house comprises 22,500 cubic feet.

Both of these homes are featured in a new booklet, "Modern Brick Homes." If you are interested in the plans for these houses or the booklet, send me a self-addressed stamped envelope in care of this paper for the name and address of the firm from which they can be obtained.

elementary pupils to the Andalusia school enrollment this year was made necessary because of the great increase in pupil enrollment at the Cornwells Elementary school.

Elementary pupils attending school on the half day session will be scheduled as follows: First and second grade pupils who are transported in school buses in the Andalusia school area will attend school in the afternoon session beginning at 12:15 p. m. These pupils reside in the area north of the Hulmeville road and State road between Gravel pike and Mill road. First and second grade pupils in the Hulmeville-Streets road triangle who are transported to school and pupils residing along State road from the Gravel pike to Haunted Lane will also attend school in the afternoon session in the Andalusia School beginning at 12:15. First and second grade pupils assigned to half day sessions, living in the Newportville road section will attend school in the morning session at the Cornwells building.

Any pupils entering Bensalem township schools for the first time will need to register before entering. Registration was held in the spring at all outlying schools and registration was completed for practically all of the new entrants. To accommodate parents who were unable to register children at that time and also for the purpose of registering pupils who have moved into the township since May, registrations may be completed at the office of the elementary supervisor in the Andalusia school for children in grades one to six and at the office in the high school for children in seven to 12 between the hours of nine and 11 a. m. on Tuesday, Sept. 2nd.

BRAIN WAVES OFFER CLUE TO DISTURBANCES

Electric shock treatment and the recording of brain waves, two scientific developments in modern neuropsychiatric practice, are explained in layman's terms in the following article written especially for International News Service by noted psychiatrist Dr. Robert V. Seliger. (I. N. S.)

By Robert V. Seliger, M. D.
Fellow of the American Psychiatric Association
Chief Psychiatrist, The Neuropsychiatric Institute of Baltimore, Md.
Assistant in Neurology, The Johns Hopkins Medical Institutions
(Distributed by INS)

BATIMORE, Md., — (INS) — The electrical activity of the surface of the brain can be recorded by means of an instrument, the electroencephalograph, which was first described by Berger in 1929.

The brain, which governs the body and the mind by nature of discharges from its billions of storage battery-like cells, produces the activity which can be automatically charted on paper in ink by this machine, that is, pictured by peak-and-valley-forms which have certain rhythms. These tracings (electroencephalograms) are popularly known as "brain-waves." The procedure is a painless, harmless one produced by placing on the individual's head a football-like helmet, connected to the machine in a specially prepared room. From the tracings a competently trained individual can make a diagnosis and tell whether the patient has normal brain-waves, or whether the patient has real epilepsy (fits).

Helps Find Brain Tumor
Electroencephalography is valuable in determining the location of a brain tumor, for there are changes in the brain-waves if a tumor is present.

Certain types of sick personality makeups can be diagnosed by examination of their brain-waves. Drug changes on the patient are recorded on the brain-waves tracings so that it can also be used as a treatment guide for patients with "fits."

Organic changes (damages) in the brain substance can also be discovered by the brain-wave tracings.

Electric Shock Treatment
Electric shock treatment for nervous conditions was started in 1938 by Cereletti and Bini and has brought mental and emotional health to many. It has emptied many a hospital bed.

By use of a measured electric current with two steel plates placed on the head, usually in the region behind the eyes, a convulsion (fit) and unconsciousness are produced by pressing a button attached to a small radio-sized box. This is followed by a sleep for a short or long interval.

This procedure is performed from three times a week up to three times a day for a series of nine to twelve fits and sleeps, which may be repeated if necessary.

The treatment is usually given in a mental hospital, but may be given in a general hospital and, in some instances, in a competent doctor's office. The emotional behavior types of depression, and of depression with agitation, respond extremely well to this type of treatment. Some of the schizophrenic (odd) behaviors also respond quite well.

This shock treatment breaks up the crystallized abnormal form of behavior and also blanks out of memory the conscious and unconscious reasons behind the behavior.

Dramatic results have been obtained by this electric shock treatment when used on carefully selected patients who have been carefully examined, physically as well as mentally, and when given by competent experts. Complications and deaths are relatively rare and the patient usually feels no pain and therefore has no fear.

LENT STARS ARE HAPPILY MARRIED

(Days of glory have passed for most of Hollywood's stars of the Roaring '20s and Tremulous '30s, but the present day finds many of them living quiet, successful lives in other fields. The following is the last of a series of articles about stars of yesteryear written by Los Angeles Herald-Express Movie Columnist Jimmy Starr and distributed by International News Service.)

By Jimmy Starr
(Distributed by I. N. S.)

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 20—(INS)—Now to be happy though married both on and off the screen might be the title of a story from dual pens of Vilma Banky and d LaRoque, who have found peaceful peace and contentment as they gracefully bowed out of Hollywood in 1930.

While they both grinned—and owingly—at each other, they like their retirement pledge. Vilma only once—for Universal's "The Bel" in 1933, and Rod a dozen times the last being "Meet John" for Warner Brothers in 1941.

Joissai Hollywood was just, just into its fabulous glittering title when Vilma and Rod had their super-colossal wedding—the best and most lavish ever staged the movie town—on June 26, 1930.

Today, Vilma and Rod—both dependently wealthy—thoroughly enjoy each other's leisurely pursuits. Vilma is an ardent golfer and has moved into championship class in the women's division by being consistently in the low eighties.

Rod, who still likes setting styles for men—such as plaid bow ties for formal wear—divides his time between being a part time realtor (associated with the Lawrence Block office in Beverly Hills) and being an amateur photographer of considerable note. Many of Rod's photographic studies have been praised in exhibitions, and he rates high among the more serious of the non-pro lens laddies.

Vilma's never-to-be-forgotten performance in "The Dark Angel," is now an important part of Hollywood's glamorous history. And she wants it to remain as such. She'll not return to the screen.

Rod eyes television and is in awe of the histrionic mistakes it makes. He might be lured back to correct some of these errors—but not as an actor, merely in the technical end.

Two happy people—Vilma and Rod—and not a bit envious that in the Hollywood parade moves on without them.

No group of stories about Hollywood would ever be complete without a local gal who made good. Although Louise Fazenda wasn't born here (Lafayette, Indiana, is her birthplace), she did attend and graduate from the old Los Angeles High School.

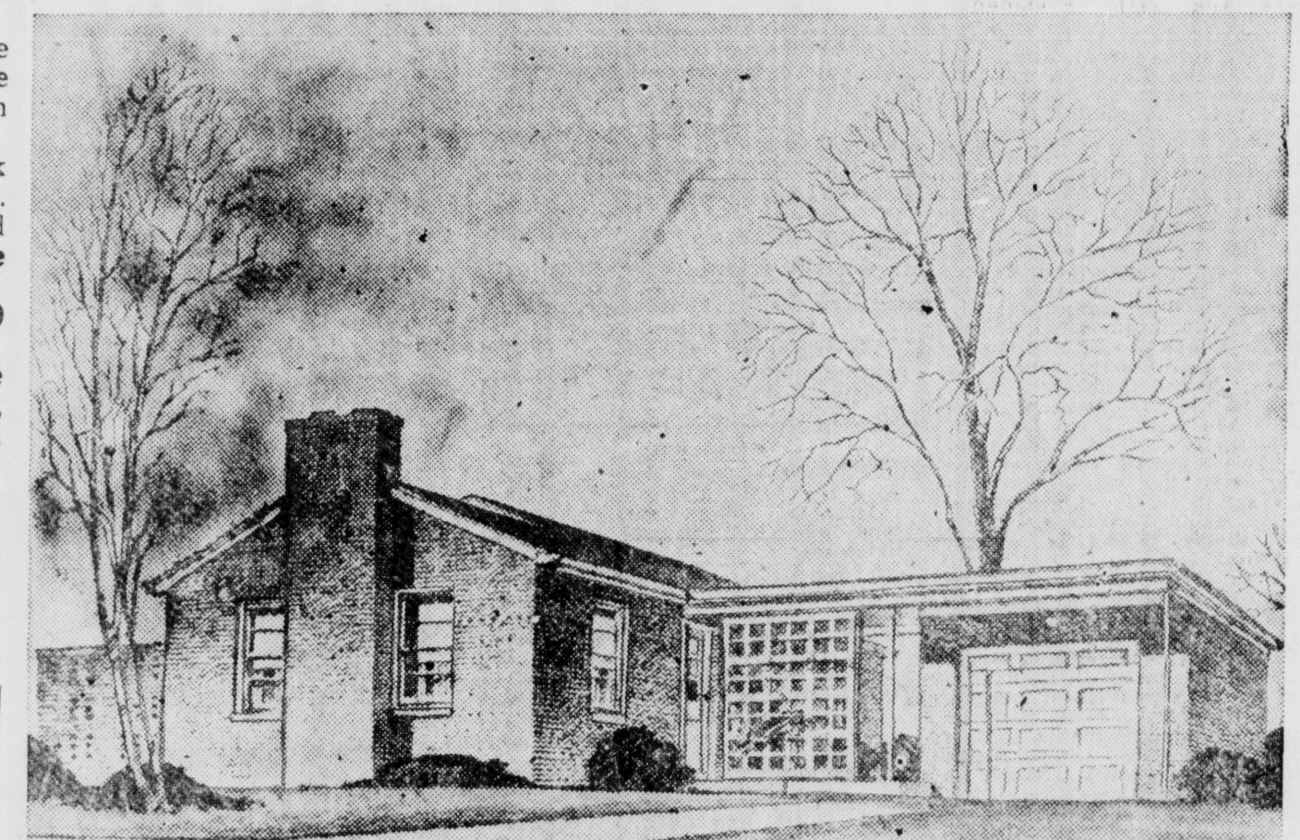

And it was while attending school that Louise, always the cut-up, got the idea that she should get a job in Mack Sennett pie-throwing comedies. Sennett took one look at her antics, and signed her.

Although Louise was and still is attractive, she preferred the homely makeup of a love-sick country girl with pigtailed. She made that rural characterization famous—without and without a pie in the face. Louise clowning her way through countless comedies from 1915 to 1939, asking for and getting an occasional serious role. Her last appearance was in "The Old Maid" for Warner Brothers.

Although she has long been in retirement, it probably wouldn't take much coaxing to get her into makeup again. Of course, she wouldn't have much trouble getting a job. She is married to Hal Wallis, who has his own production unit for release through Paramount.

SPECIAL CARE IS REQUIRED FOR THE KITCHEN UTENSILS

By Frances Vannoy

Give your kitchen utensils the proper care and attention and they will pay you with longer and better service.

For general soil, utensils of any material respond to soap and water. However, each material requires a different treatment for hard-to-remove or special stains.

One way to remove discoloration in aluminum utensils is to add two tablespoons of cream of tartar to a quart of water and allow the solution to boil a few minutes. Or you can cook an acid food like tomatoes or rhubarb in the utensil. You will avoid pitting if you do not store foods in aluminum utensils. Overheating may cause aluminum to warp.

Rub cast iron utensils with unsalted fat when you plan to store them for a period of time. The fat prevents the iron from rusting.

To clean copper utensils, you can use a special metal cleaner or salt with vinegar or lemon juice. When the lining corrodes or wears thin have the utensil replated.

For the best performance of earthenware, enameled ware, and glass, avoid sudden changes in temperature and do not scrape the utensil with a sharp instrument. Use a mild abrasive when necessary. Never let an enameled ware or glass utensil boil dry. Use a wooden spoon for stirring food in utensils of these materials.

To prevent heat stains, avoid overheating stainless steel. Use a mild abrasive if necessary to remove food stain.

Never scour or scrape tinware and dry thoroughly after washing. Try not to overheat tinware. To remove scorched food, heat a solution of water and soda in the pan, then use a wooden spoon if necessary to further loosen the food.

One way to remove discoloration in aluminum utensils is to add two tablespoons of cream of tartar to a quart of water and allow the solution to boil a few minutes. Or you can cook an acid food like tomatoes or rhubarb in the utensil. You will avoid pitting if you do not store foods in aluminum utensils. Overheating may cause aluminum to warp.

Rub cast iron utensils with unsalted fat when you plan to store them for a period of time. The fat prevents the iron from rusting.

To clean copper utensils, you can use a special metal cleaner or salt with vinegar or lemon juice. When the lining corrodes or wears thin have the utensil replated.

For the best performance of earthenware, enameled ware, and glass, avoid sudden changes in temperature and do not scrape the utensil with a sharp instrument. Use a mild abrasive when necessary. Never let an enameled ware or glass utensil boil dry. Use a wooden spoon for stirring food in utensils of these materials.

To prevent heat stains, avoid

time and also for the purpose of registering pupils who have moved into the township since May, registrations may be completed at the office of the elementary supervisor in the Andalusia school for children in grades one to six and at the office in the high school for children in seven to 12 between the hours of nine and 11 a. m. on Tuesday, Sept. 2nd.

BRAIN WAVES OFFER CLUE TO DISTURBANCES

Electric shock treatment and the recording of brain waves, two scientific developments in modern neuropsychiatric practice, are explained in layman's terms in the following article written especially for International News Service by noted psychiatrist Dr. Robert V. Seliger. (I. N. S.)

By Robert V. Seliger, M. D.
Fellow of the American Psychiatric Association
Chief Psychiatrist, The Neuropsychiatric Institute of Baltimore, Md.
Assistant in Neurology, The Johns Hopkins Medical Institutions
(Distributed by INS)

BALTIMORE, Md. — (INS) — The electrical activity of the surface of the brain can be recorded by means of an instrument, the electroencephalograph, which was first described by Berger in 1929. The brain, which governs the body and the mind by nature of discharges from its billions of storage battery-like cells, produces the activity which can be automatically charted on paper in ink by this machine, that is, pictured by peak-and-valley-forms which have certain rhythms. These tracings (electroencephalograms) are popularly known as "brain-waves."

The procedure is a painless, harmless one produced by placing on the individual's head a football-like helmet, connected to the machine in a specially prepared room.

From the tracings a competently trained individual can make a diagnosis and tell whether the patient has normal brain-waves, or whether the patient has real epilepsy (fits).

Helps Find Brain Tumor
Electroencephalography is valuable in determining the location of a brain tumor, for there are changes in the brain-waves if a tumor is present.

Certain types of sick personality makeups can be diagnosed by examination of their brain-waves. Drug changes on the patient are recorded on the brain-wave tracings so that it can also be used as a treatment guide for patients with "fits."

Organic changes (damages) in the brain substance can also be discovered by the brain-wave tracings.

Electric Shock Treatment
Electric shock treatment for nervous conditions was started in 1938 by Cereletti and Bini and has brought mental and emotional health to many. It has emptied many a hospital bed.

By use of a measured electric current with two steel plates placed on the head, usually in the region behind the eyes, a convulsion (fit) and unconsciousness are produced by pressing a button attached to a small radio-sized box. This is followed by a sleep for a short or long interval.

This procedure is performed from three times a week up to three times a day for a series of nine to twelve fits and sleeps, which may be repeated if necessary.

The treatment is usually given in a mental hospital, but may be given in a general hospital and, in some instances, in a competent doctor's office. The emotional behavior types of depression, and of depression with agitation, respond extremely well to this type of treatment. Some of the schizophrenic (odd) behaviors also respond quite well.

This shock treatment breaks up the crystallized abnormal form of behavior and also blanks out of memory the conscious and unconscious reasons behind the behavior.

Dramatic results have been obtained by this electric shock treatment when used on carefully selected patients who have been carefully examined, physically as well as mentally, and when given by competent experts. Complications and deaths are relatively rare and the patient usually feels no pain and therefore has no fear.

LENT STARS ARE HAPPILY MARRIED

(Days of glory have passed for most of Hollywood's stars of the Roaring '20s and Tremulous '30s, but the present day finds many of them living quiet, successful lives in other fields. The following is the last of a series of articles about stars of yesteryear written by Los Angeles Herald-Express Movie Columnist Jimmy Starr and distributed by International News Service.)

By Jimmy Starr
(Distributed by I. N. S.)

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 20—(INS)—Now to be happy though married both on and off the screen? Right to the title of a story from old pens of Vilma Banky and d LaRocque, who have found peaceful and contentment in Hollywood since 1930. While they both grinned—and wiggled—at each other, they like their retirement pledge. Vilma only once—for Universal's "The Bel" in 1933, and Rod a dozen in the last being "Meet John" for Warner Brothers in 1941. Vilma's Hollywood was just starting its fabulous glittering title when Vilma and Rod had a super-colossal wedding—the best and most lavish ever staged the movie town—on June 26, 1937.

Today, Vilma and Rod—both independently wealthy—thoroughly enjoy each other's leisurely pursuits. Vilma is an ardent golfer and has moved into championship class in the women's division by being consistently in the low eighties.

Rod, who still likes setting styles for men—such as plaid bow ties for formal wear—divides his time between being a part time realtor (associated with the Lawrence Block office in Beverly Hills) and being an amateur photographer of considerable note. Many of Rod's photographic studies have been praised in exhibitions, and he rates high among the more serious of the non-pro lens laddies.

Vilma's never-to-be-forgotten performance in "The Dark Angel" is now an important part of Hollywood's glamorous history. And she wants it to remain as such. She'll not return to the screen.

Rod eyes television and is in awe of the histrionic mistakes it makes. He might be lured back to correct some of these errors—but not as an actor, merely in the technical end.

Two happy people—Vilma and Rod—and not a bit envious that the Hollywood parade moves on without them.

No group of stories about Hollywood would ever be complete without a local gal who made good. Although Louise Fazenda wasn't born here (Lafayette, Indiana, is her birthplace), she did attend and graduate from the old Los Angeles High School.

And it was while attending school that Louise, always the cut-up, got the idea that she should get a job in Mack Sennett pie-throwing comedies. Sennett took one look at her antics and signed her.

Although Louise was and still is attractive, she preferred the homey makeup of a love-sick country girl with pigtales. She made that rural characterization famous—with and without a pie in the face.

Louise clowning her way through countless comedies from 1915 to 1939, asking for and getting an occasional serious role. Her last appearance was in "The Old Maid" for Warner Brothers.

Although she has long been in retirement, it probably wouldn't take much coaxing to get her into makeup again. Of course, she wouldn't have much trouble getting a job. She is married to Hal Wallis, who has his own production unit for release through Paramount.

100 Prize Cattle Judged At Show at Dolington

Str. Quarry Valley Philosopher placed second and Jey Hill Duke's Hollister placed third.

In the class Bulls-One Year and Under Two Years Evergreen Sir Alexander received the blue ribbon of first place. Quarry's V. Lad placed second; Hominy Hill Handson, third.

Grand Champion Bull was judged to be Evergreen Sir Alexander. Quarry Valley's Lad won the title of Reserve Grand Champion.

Valleyrun Kinsman's Marietta took first prize in the Junior Heifer Calves competition. Evergreen Alamy won second place and Celebrity Farms Angela received third place in the team competitive class—in which there were 13 entries.

Of the senior Heifer calves the blue ribbon went to Endovale Athena. Evergreen Ralena and Evergreen Ralidia placed second and third in the event.

Morning competition ended with the awarding to Partridge C. Blue-bill the first prize in the Junior yearling heifer class. Second place went to Valleyrun Kinsman's Mary, and third was taken by Elmgrove Witch-Lass.

Said Judge Newlin of the entries in this class: "With a heifer at this age it's uncertain what the under will look like," but said he of Partridge C. Blue Bill, "She shows a lot of promise—there's a lot of cow about her."

On this note ended the morning's competition. And the spectators ambled over to the counter set up outside the meeting house to have a chicken sandwich and a glass of chocolate milk, or to sit under the tree with their family eating a lunch that had been packed in a picnic basket.

When the show resumed at about 1:15 after a 30 minute recess the remainder of the show was judged.

First showing of the afternoon was in the Senior Yearling Heifer Class. It was a disappointing showing, and before announcing his decision Judge Newlin said "The quality is a little bit down in this class." But he awarded the prize for the class to Brian Boru Royal Meadowweet. And when someone in the audience heckled the Judge because of his choice he made the comment over the microphone, "Lady, you don't milk the head."

Judge Newlin had a kind word for the second place winner when he said "She's a very trim and attractive heifer all the way through."

All during the show one couldn't help but notice the atmosphere of a summer's picnic that hung over the show. The sweet smell of the dairy, the fresh scent of new cut grass, and the cool shade of the tent made the mid-August day seem like an afternoon in late September.

In one direction of view were ancient stalls of hand hewn beams and weathered shingled roofs where the cows were tethered.

Here they received their pre-judging grooming.

Children from the nearby farms as well as from the farms of exhibitors, drank soda pop and played in the hay as the grooms dressed the cattle for their showing.

Further back, lay the quiet tombstones of the Friends cemetery, behind the stone and cement plastered waist-high walls. And to the rear, and on the right facing the road, were row upon row of corn.

Then one's attention was brought back to the show, where in your study of the area adjacent to the tent you'd completely missed the last showing. But the judges have it all down in black and white: Partridge C. Blue Bill, winner in the Junior Yearling Heifer class has won the Junior championship.

The 4-H class blue ribbon has gone to Mordale Farms Ruthie, while Eileen Annie Laurie has taken first in the fitting contest, and Jey Hill Duke's Anitra in the 4-H showmanship contest. Jey Hill Duke's Anitra is Grand Champion 4-H animal and Wilshire Carrie's Alice is Reserve Grand 4-H Animal.

Associate Judge Christian is standing in the sawdust oval holding the microphone at an angle over the ropes and saying of Lee-side Baron's Rosette in the Cows-Two Year Old Class, "A real nice heifer, and really tops in her class."

He adds that Brian Boru Royal Diva, second place, has "not quite the finish of the other heifer." And that Quarry Valley's Son's Blenda, who is judged to be third, just lacks a little in size.

In the Cows-Three Year Old class Partridge Predictor's Pheasant is blue ribbon first. Kadockadee Rascal's Fay, second, Ideal's May Royal's Marie, third.

Quarry Valley's Snooks leads Quarry Valley's M. Lazuli and Ideal's Fancier's Rose Louise who placed respectively second and third.

"A good animal all the way through" is Judge Newlin's comment in awarding to Happyholme Red Nettie first place in the class of Cows-Five Years Old and Over. Second place Bear Haven Mister's Coquette "fits the pattern of the first place winner, while Wood-acres Queen Victoria, though possessed of a "capacious udder" lacks the body qualities of the other winning entries.

Judge Newlin awarded Senior Champion prize to Happyholme Red Nettie, and then called for the winner in the junior class to compete with her for Grand Champion Prize.

And F. M. and T. M. Shaw's Happy Holme Red Nettie had what could be seen while the Junior Champion, still a heifer, will require time to develop, so Judge Newlin said "we'll stay with the senior champion for a while yet."

Mr. T. M. Shaw received the trophy, presented by William Clarke, owner of Quarry Valley Farms.

Reserve Grand Champion was judged to be Partridge Predictor's Pheasant, winner in the three year old class. And Happy Holme Red Nettie continued her winning afternoon by taking the trophy for best in the Udder Class.

At this point an award provided by Norman Leedom, of Model Farms and president of the Bucks County Guernsey Breeder's association, was presented to Lloyd Bloom, one of the handlers "for courtesies shown to the judges during the show."

In the Senior Get of Sire Class, Rockingham Monitor, was the only entry. While in the Junior Get of Sire class of thirteen entries Fair-lawn Hornet's Corporal was given the first place ribbon. Quarry Valley's Lad placed second in the event, and Evergreen Sir Raleigh was third.

Premier Exhibitor points went to William C. Clark, 64; P. W. and O. A. Smith, 57, and J. Bradshaw and F. M. and T. M. Shaw with tied scores of 51 points each.

Final exhibiting class of the day was Produce of Dam. Maple Lane Designer's Juanita placed first. Windybrook Suzanne placed second. Bountiful Pucanella received third honors.

At the conclusion of the show the judges were commended on the fine job they had done. County Agent William F. Greenawalt commented that it was a finer show, and "much larger" than had been the previous one.

Norman Leedom, president of the Guernsey association, explained the undersigned, Walter William Jackson, of Fairless Hills, Bucks County, Pennsylvania, will apply to the Bucks County Board of Law Examiners at its meeting on Friday, September 5, 1952, for a certificate of admission to practice in the Court of Common Pleas, Orphans' Court, and the other several courts of Bucks County, Pennsylvania.

Doylestown Club To Combine Garden Club With Its Show

DOYLESTOWN, Aug. 20 — The Doylestown Nature Club announces a radical and intriguing departure from its customary autumnal flower show on Sept. 6th.

This year, instead of an exhibition of arrangements under one roof, there will be a combination flower show and garden tour in which various classes will be shown with a variety of Doylestown home gardens as backgrounds.

It is felt that by doing this, the visiting public will not only have an opportunity to observe exhibits but also the effective manner in which flower lovers have utilized small areas which are part of the environment of their homes.

The classes in nearby gardens will comprise: 1. Grouping of potted plants for effect in the garden. 2. Arrangement of cut flowers in large container suitable for the terrace. 3. "Guest expected"—umbrella tables. 4. Arrangement of fruits and/or vegetables and/or gourds in a basket. Gourds in a basket. 5. "The pause that refreshes" by a swimming pool. 6. "Lunch alone"—and like it. 7. Specimen potted plants. 8. Horticultural classes at Fordhook Farm.

Prizes will be awarded in all classes.

Refreshments will be served at Fordhook Farm. Tickets will be sold, the affair to benefit the club's community projects.

Today's Quiet Moment

By Rabbi Aron Moskovits of Bristol Jewish Center

"How precious is Thy love O Lord. In the shadow of Thy wings do the race of Man find refuge. They feast upon the choice delights of Thy house and of the river of Thy pleasures. Thou givest them to drink. For with Thee is the fountain of life; in Thy light we see light." (Ps. XXXVI:7-9.)

The quoted brings home to us an important lesson. The psalmist's love of God and His children is evident. How precious, he exclaims, is Thy love O Lord. Thy all protecting love—in which the race of Man finds refuge; even as a bird finds rest and safety beneath its mother's wing. No image could be more beautifully or powerfully expressed than is the divine love for the lowly child of clay. His love, as the psalmist puts it, is high as heaven and wide as life—no human being too remote to be reached by it, too sinful to count upon it—too miserable to find solace, repose and security in its sheltering embrace. And even as His love excludes none, so must the love of Man recognize no artificial limitations or boundaries.

NEWS OF THE LEVITTOWN COMMUNITY

LEVITTOWN COUPLE ARE AVID WESTERN FANS

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Razzano Met at An Eastern "Dude Ranch"

BOTH LOVE HORSES

By Staff Reporter

LEVITTOWN, Aug. 20 — "Ki-yi yippee yi-yo!" It probably wouldn't be at all unusual to hear that or some other western expression in the household of Esther and Vincent Razzano, 52 Stonybrook Drive, because both of these young people are avid western fans.

The atmosphere of the home and the conversation of Mrs. Razzano is so electric with a western flavor that it wouldn't have been at all surprising to walk out to the utility room to find a horse stabled there!

Even before she met her husband, Esther Razzano had been an active rider, participating in horse shows and rodeos in the New York City area. She met her husband at an eastern "dude ranch," and ever since, the two of them have been "partners" in life and in their keen interest in horses.

Mrs. Razzano has ridden in shows at Madison Square Garden in Manhattan, and one year she was the "rodeo queen" from one of the eastern ranches. She shows with pride a picture of herself, taken in "cowgirl" clothes by Gene Aukry. She used to do trick riding and at one time owned her own horse. She does still have her own saddle.

In the north Jersey area, a type of horse show called a "showdeo" is popular. The Razzanos are frequent habitués of these shows.

Interest in horses extends even to creative work. Esther makes her own draperies, sofa covers and western clothes. She displayed a lavender shirt she made for herself, complete with snap buttons and a western yoke. She also made one for her husband, a colorful green and white one with pockets. Razzano himself is quite talented at making western leather belts.

Scattered around over the fireplace, book shelves and window ledges are small horses, of many colors and sizes. One of the most interesting phases of her collection is that of the many toy saddles she has.

When the living room is completely furnished, there will be a large plaque over the sofa. This plaque, which the Razzanos recently purchased, will have a horse's head protruding from it.

This interest of the Razzanos in the western motif fits in so well with the type of home here in Levittown, and this is certainly one family that has taken full advantage of the "ranch" style technique.

Animals were the chief subjects of paintings in prehistoric caves.

The first American pilot's license went to Glen Curtiss in 1911.

A Series of Articles Introducing the New Residents of Levittown to The Community.

By Staff Reporter

LEVITTOWN, Aug. 20 — Occupants of 52 Stonybrook Drive are Vincent and Esther Razzano, who came here from Levittown, Long Island.

Razzano, who installs oil burners for the Levitt homes, is originally a Long Island resident. Mrs. Razzano hails from New Jersey. The two met at an eastern "dude ranch."

The Razzanos plan to make the small room off the living room a den, with a western decorating motif. Both are very much interested in horses, riding, ranches, western clothes, rodeos and such. Almost all of Esther Razzano's conversation involved horses in one way or another. The visitor in her home will see evidence of that almost anywhere he looks, as the adjoining column will tell.

Most of their furniture and accessories have not arrived yet, but a future stop at the Razzano residence should certainly provide a colorful atmosphere.

ALL-STAR GAME WILL BE PLAYED HERE THIS EVENING

The annual all-star game of the Bristol Softball League will be played this evening on Memorial field, starting at 6:15 o'clock. An All-Star team, picked by the managers of the circuit, will meet the 1951 champions, Fifth Ward Sporting Club. Nine innings will be played and the receipts of the tilt will be given to the "Mike" Murphy fund.

Manager Seddie Caro, of the Warders, intends to start Stanley "Butch" Koreyva on the mound with Stan Partka behind the plate. John Cordisco will be on first, and Joe Pica, second. Ed Fahey will be at short, and Ray Pierandozzi, third. The outfield will be composed of Henry Liberatore, Vic Cauti and Danny Pieo. This team also captured the regular season championship this year and drew a bye in the forthcoming playoffs.

Several players who were picked on the All-Star team will be unable to make tonight's fracas and substitutes will be inserted into the lineup. "Lou" Mari and "Mike" DeLisa have been chosen as additional first basemen, while "Toby" Oriola has been named as an utility player.

"Whizzer" White will draw the pitching assignment and will receive assistance from "Chick" Stanisky.

Bill Cummins, of Minnesota Mining, will manage the All-Stars. He will name his assistants and also pick two other hurlers from the loop to bolster his pitching staff.

The quarter-finals of the Bristol Softball League will get under way Monday evening with Kaiser Metal meeting Franklin. On Tuesday evening, Auto Boys will play 3M's. The teams will be one game each with the winners clashing in a three-game series.

GIANTS TROUNCE EAGLES, 12 TO 3

The Giants went on a hitting spree last evening as they trounced the Eagles, 12-3, in a Bristol Boys League game on Leedom's field.

The winners battered McGinley for a total of 12 hits. Katz, Thompson, and Carango paced the attack by getting three hits each. The Giants scored all their runs in three big frames, the first, third, and sixth.

While the Giants were doing all the hitting, Jim Williams was setting down the Eagles with ease as he held them to three hits.

SOFT WATER BEST WAY TO WASH NYLON

(By INS)

WASHINGTON, (INS)—The new synthetic fabrics that have made things easier for the American homemaker have also brought some new problems.

Just when women had the laundering system for cotton or silks down pat, along came nylon. And along came the problem of how to wash white nylon—which tends to yellow after many wearings and washings—so that it stays white.

The Government's Bureau of Home Economics did some research on home methods of laundering nylon, and the result is something all homemakers should know. Apparently, it's not the soap or detergent that counts in getting the best results with washing nylon—it's the softness of the water.

Now here's the formula for keeping your white nylon things snowy white. Wash them separately from colored clothes, and give them a good soaking before washing. Use soap or a synthetic detergent in

SUNDAY DINNER Suggestions

SOUPS and salads go the head of the table at this time of the year when you want to spend less time at the stove and more time in the summer outdoors. For variety, reverse the usual table temperatures with this suggestion by the A & P Service for Homemakers: serve chilled tomato-cucumber soup and hot shrimp salad.

For eight servings of soup, combine eight cups of tomato juice, one cup of grated cucumber, one-fourth cup of chopped green onion, one teaspoon of salt, one-half teaspoon of pepper, one-fourth teaspoon of Tabasco, one tablespoon of Worcestershire, two tablespoons of prepared horseradish and the juice of two lemons. Cover and place in refrigerator until serving time. Then add one cup of chilled, diced cucumber, one and one-half cups of diced fresh tomato and one-half cup of chopped parsley or dill.

The salad can be made ahead of time, refrigerated and baked just before serving. Use two and one-half pounds of fresh or four five-ounce cans of medium-size shrimp, drained. If you use the fresh, it must be boiled, shelled and deveined. The canned needs only deveining. Add two cups of diced celery, one-half cup of chopped stuffed olives, one-half cup of minced green pepper, one-fourth cup of minced onion, juice of one lemon, one teaspoon of salt for the fresh and one-half teaspoon for the canned shrimp, dash of garlic salt, dash of cayenne, one teaspoon dry mustard and one and one-half cups of mayonnaise. Mix lightly and put in two-quart casserole (or individual baking shells). Mix one and one-half cups of soft bread crumbs with one-third cup of melted margarine. Sprinkle on top of salad and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) for 25 minutes. Serves eight.

soft or softened water. And rinse very thoroughly.

White nylon that has been yellowed by hard water will whiten if you first soak it several times—four or five if necessary—in water to which a softener has been added. This will loosen oil and soap left in the nylon by hard water washings.

Then give the nylon a good rinse in water to which bluing has been added. That's about the only effective way to get rid of the yellow look.

Bleaches which may work on other fabrics aren't good for nylon. Chlorine bleach will whiten the nylon, but it also will weaken the fabric. Some bleaching preparations containing sodium perborate also were tried by the government experts, but they didn't do much more of a job on white nylon than plain washing in soap and soft water.

The board will require a doctor's certificate for sickleave for absences of two consecutive days or more.

The entire program as set up is to apply to the 1952-1953 school year only, with possible extension for an indefinite period of time if the plan works satisfactorily.

The board also decided that cleaning women will be employed for four-hour duty in the Laurel Bend School, the new Edgely School, and Wistar Institute. One woman will be employed at each school except that two will be employed at the Wistar Institute. The rate, from which retirement pay will be deducted, is set at $1.10 per hour.

The new fluorescent lights recently displayed at the new Edgely school will be installed in one room of that school and in one room of the Croydon school in order to determine under test the advisability of completely equipping each school with the lights. Total installation cost of the lights was estimated at $200 per classroom, plus the time necessary for school maintenance men to install the lights.

ANNOUNCE SOME NEW TRENDS FOR DECORATING HOUSE

By Frances Vannoy
(Home Economics Extension Representative)

Simplicity and comfort are two keynotes for today's decorating. Here is a brief summary of some of the latest trends in home decorating and furnishings:

Furniture—much of today's furniture is designed and made for carefree use and ease of cleaning. Lighter finishes are replacing shiny dark finishes which showed every fleck of dust. Wheels for easier moving are hidden underneath heavy pieces of furniture. Tweed-like upholstery fabrics help hide the spots. Plastic materials are better looking. Chair arms have a sculptured look because of subtle curves. Cane gives texture and outmoded fussy carving that collected dust.

Walls—washable is the latest in wall coverings, whether paint or wallpaper. Wall colors have such exciting names as nasturtium, avocado, cinnamon, shrimp.

Floors—all over patterns and textures add interest; cottons in lovely colors fit any color scheme and are washable; the smooth bare look of wood, linoleum, or tile is a favorite with modern settings.

Windows—sheer fabrics are processed to stay crisp and resist dirt. When washed, they need little or no ironing. Plain traverse draperies may be unlined. Bold colors and abstract designs in drapery fabrics often are inspired by contemporary artists.

Lamps—today's low tables and lounge type chairs have a shaded chandelier directly over table with adjustable cord so the shade can be near table or near ceiling.

Accessories—the trend is toward fewer and bigger ones. Occasional tables are big and beautiful, and a round coffee table may be surrounded by four chairs.

ALL-STAR GAME
WILL BE PLAYED
HERE THIS EVENING

The annual all-star game of the Bristol Softball League will be played this evening on Memorial field, starting at 6:15 o'clock. An All-Star team, picked by the managers of the circuit, will meet the 1951 champions, Fifth Ward Sporting Club. Nine innings will be played and the receipts of the tilt will be given to the "Mike" Murphy fund.

Manager Siedle Caro, of the Warders, intends to start Stanley "Butch" Koreyva on the mound with Stan Partyka behind the plate. John Cordisco will be on first, and Joe Pica, second. Ed Fahey will be at short, and Ray Pierandozzi, third. The outfield will be composed of Henry Liberatore, Vic Cauti and Danny Pico. This team also captured the regular season championship this year and drew a bye in the forthcoming playoffs.

Several players who were picked on the All-Star team will be unable to make tonight's fracas and substitutes will be inserted into the lineup. "Lou" Mari and "Mike" DeLisa have been chosen as additional first basemen, while "Toby" Oriola has been named as an utility player.

"Whizzer" White will draw the pitching assignment and will receive assistance from "Chick" Stanley.

Bill Cummins, of Minnesota Mining, will manage the All-Stars. He will name his assistants and also pick two other hurlers from the loop to bolster his pitching staff.

The quarter-finals of the Bristol Softball League will get under way Monday evening with Kaiser Metal meeting Franklin. On Tuesday evening, Auto Boys will play 3M's. The teams will be one game each with the winners clashing in a three-game series.

The Giants went on a hitting spree last evening as they trounced the Eagles, 12-3, in a Bristol Boys League game on Leedom's field.

SOFT WATER
BEST WAY TO WASH NYLON

(By INS)
WASHINGTON, — (INS) — The new synthetic fabrics that have made things easier for the American homemaker have also brought some new problems.

Just when women had the laundering system for cotton or silks down pat, along came nylon. And along came the problem of how to wash white nylon — which tends to yellow after many wearings and washings — so that it stays white.

The Government's Bureau of Home Economics did some research on home methods of laundering nylon, and the result is something all homemakers should know. Apparently, it's not the soap or detergent that counts in getting the best results with washing nylon — it's the softness of the water.

Now here's the formula for keeping your white nylon things snowy white. Wash them separately from colored clothes, and given them a good soaking before washing. Use soap or a synthetic detergent in

SUNDAY DINNER
Suggestions

SOUPS and salads go the head of the table at this time of the year when you want to spend less time at the stove and more time in the summer outdoors. For variety, reverse the usual table temperatures with this suggestion by the A & P Service for Homemakers: serve chilled tomato-cucumber soup and hot shrimp salad.

For eight servings of soup, combine eight cups of tomato juice, one cup of grated cucumber, one-fourth cup of chopped green onion, one teaspoon of salt, one-half teaspoon of pepper, one-fourth teaspoon of Worcestershire, two tablespoons of prepared horseradish and the juice of two lemons. Cover and place in refrigerator until serving time. Then add one cup of chilled, diced cucumber, one and one-half cups of diced, fresh tomato and one-half cup of chopped parsley or chives.

The salad can be made ahead of time, refrigerated and baked just before serving. Use two and one-half pounds of fresh or four five-ounce cans of medium-size shrimp, drained. If you use the fresh, it must be boiled, shelled and deveined. The canned needs only deveining. Add two cups of diced celery, one-half cup of chopped stuffed olives, one-half cup of minced green pepper, one-fourth cup of minced onion, juice of one lemon, one teaspoon of salt for the fresh and one-half teaspoon for the canned shrimp, dash of garlic salt, dash of cayenne, one teaspoon dry mustard and one and one-half cups of mayonnaise. Mix lightly and put in two-quart casserole (or individual baking shells). Mix one and one-half cups of soft bread crumbs with one-third cup of melted margarine. Sprinkle on top of salad and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) for 25 minutes. Serves eight.
